Organizing Your FINANCES

A simple guide to determine what documents to keep and what documents are OK to toss!

Marriage licences and divorce decrees

Pension plan documents

Copies of wills, living wills, trusts, and powers of attorney

Military discharge papers

Copies of burial deeds and plots

Safe-deposit box inventory

filing cabinet and backed up on the cloud Appliance manuals and warranties

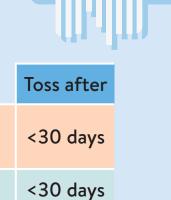

as long as you own the asset Ideally in an organized and lockable

Insurance policies

House and mortgage documents

Vehicle titles and loan documents

45 days

1 year

	11
		5 Pay stubs			1 year	4
		6 Medical records			5 years	•
		Tax returns and supporting documents			6 years	4
		8 Investment statements			6 years	-
	П	4				a
		Make sure that the transaction is reflected on your bank statement and then get rid of the ATM slip.		Keep for one year; be sure to match them to your T4 slip before you shred.
	Ц	2		Keep records for five		6
		Shred them after		years fr	om the time

Utility and phone bills

Bank statements

Credit card statements

Shred credit card statements after 45 days, but hang onto those statements that you may need for business, for taxes, as proof of purchase, or for insurance.

you've paid them, unless they contain tax-deductible expenses.

You only need to keep bank statements for one year. However, if records are related to your taxes, business expenses, home improvements, mortgage payments or major purchases, hold onto them for six years.

prescription and health insurance information.

You need to hold onto your returns and all supporting documents for six years.

treatment for the symptoms ends. Retain statements as new ones arrive, but keep annual statements until the sale of each asset within the account occurs and for six years thereafter, in case you get audited.

Shred monthly

purchases, hold onto them for six years.

A good rule of thumb: If you will need to venture down to a government office, wait in line at a hospital or sit on the phone for an hour to retrieve a document, then it's likely best to hold onto it. If you can easily pop online and retrieve a document, then you likely don't need to keep a physical copy.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Sources: Canada Revenue Agency, Jill on Money, Lifehacker.com, Mint.com, Suze Orman